SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

I. Background

The purpose of this notice is to announce virtual listening sessions and the opening of a public docket to receive input from the public on labeling of wine, distilled spirits, and malt beverages with per-serving alcohol and nutritional information, major food allergens, and/or ingredients. The Department of the Treasury’s February 2022 report on “Competition in the Markets for Beer, Wine, and Spirits” recommended that TTB revive or initiate rulemaking in these areas. These listening sessions are intended to engage the public, including consumers, public health stakeholders, and industry members of all sizes, in addition to those who may traditionally respond through the rulemaking process, and facilitate the public’s ability to provide input to inform rulemaking.

The Federal Alcohol Administration Act (FAA Act), 27 U.S.C. 205(e)(2), authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury to prescribe regulations that will provide adequate information as to the identity and quality of alcohol beverages. The FAA Act does not require alcohol beverage labels to disclose a full list of ingredients,¹ any major food allergens² used in the production of alcohol beverages, or nutritional information such as the number of calories or the amount of carbohydrate, protein, fat, or other nutrients. TTB and its predecessor agencies have published regulations on the labeling of wine, distilled spirits, and malt beverages in parts 4, 5, and 7, respectively, of chapter I of title 27 of the Code of Federal Regulations (27 CFR chapter I). TTB also has provided standards for voluntary nutrient content statements (TTB Ruling 2013–2), standards for voluntary disclosures of major food allergens (27 CFR 4.32a–4.32b, 5.82–5.83, and 7.82–7.83), and requirements for alcohol content disclosures for most alcohol beverages (27 CFR 4.36, 5.65, and 7.65). TTB is now considering whether the disclosure of the information currently subject to voluntary standards should instead be required; whether required alcohol content disclosures should be expanded to a broader scope of beverages; and, if so, how the information should be presented.

In 2005, TTB sought comments in an advance notice of proposed rulemaking on alcohol content, nutritional information, major food allergen, and ingredient labeling. See Notice No. 41 (70 FR 22274, April 29, 2005).

TTB is now seeking updated input regarding these topics. We are particularly interested in whether consumers will find such information useful, the costs and burdens associated with industry members providing that information, and alternate approaches for providing that information in a way that is both effective and appropriately balances the benefit to consumers with the costs and burdens on industry members.

This action follows the Department of the Treasury's report, issued on February 9, 2022, titled "Competition in the Markets for Beer, Wine and Spirits," that included recommendations related to labeling alcohol beverages with nutrition, major food allergen, and ingredient information.³ The Department issued the report pursuant to Executive Order (E.O.) 14036, "Promoting Competition in the American Economy." Among other more parts per million). The regulations also require a warning statement when aspartame is present. See 27 CFR 4.32, 5.63, and 7.63.

² Major food allergens include milk, eggs, fish, Crustacean shellfish, tree nuts, peanuts, wheat, soybeans, and sesame. See 21 U.S.C. 321(qq) and 343(w). More information on major food allergens is available at <https://www.fda.gov/food/food-labeling-nutrition/food-allergies>.

things, Treasury addressed text in E.O. 14036 that asked the Department to review labeling regulations "that may unnecessarily inhibit competition by increasing costs without serving any public health, informational, or tax purpose." The report found that "[r]egulatory proposals that could serve public health and foster competition by providing information to consumers, such as mandatory allergen, nutrition, and ingredient labeling proposals, have not been implemented." The report contains several recommendations, including that "TTB should revive or initiate rulemaking proposing ingredient labeling and mandatory information on alcohol content, nutritional content, and appropriate serving sizes."

Further, in April 2023, the President signed Executive Order 14094, "Modernizing Regulatory Review," encouraging agencies to provide opportunities for public participation in regulatory actions to promote equitable and meaningful participation by a range of interested or affected parties, including underserved communities. The Office of Management and Budget's guidance for implementing E.O. 14094 encourages Federal agencies to solicit comments in non-written formats, such as live webinars or audio recordings, to encourage participation from members of the public who might not otherwise participate in the regulatory process and to use virtual listening sessions to reach people who may be unable to attend in-person sessions. The guidance also provides that listening sessions are most appropriate before a proposed rule.

II. Topics for Comment

To facilitate input from the public, including individual consumers, consumer and other public interest groups, public health stakeholders, affected industry members of all sizes, and any other interested parties, TTB has developed the following list of questions. TTB encourages commenters to explain the rationale behind their comments and to include any available supporting data and other information, as appropriate.

1. Do consumers believe that they are adequately informed by the information currently provided on alcohol beverage labels?

2. Is alcohol content per serving, and nutritional information (such as calories, carbohydrates, protein, and fat) per serving important for consumers in deciding whether to purchase or consume a particular alcohol beverage? Would a full list of ingredients, and/or major food allergens, be important information for consumers in making their purchasing or consumption decisions? In what ways would this information be useful, and in what ways could it be misleading? Is some of this information more important than others?

3. What types of per-serving nutritional information, such as calories, carbohydrates, protein, and fat, should be included?

4. Would requiring this information on labels be expected to increase the cost of the products and, if so, by how much? To what extent are businesses already following voluntary guidelines for this information? Are there alternative ways of providing the information, for example by allowing information to be provided through a website using a quick response code (QR code) or website address on the label?

5. How would any new mandatory labeling requirements particularly affect small businesses and new businesses entering the marketplace?

III. Public Participation

As the intent of the public listening sessions is to allow the general public to provide input to TTB on aspects of potential approaches to labeling of wine, distilled spirits, and malt beverages with alcohol content, nutritional information, major food allergens, and/or ingredients, the sessions have been designed to facilitate one-way communications. Outside of introductory and logistical remarks, TTB will not be providing substantive information on the topic or responding to comments during the public listening sessions. Attendance at the listening sessions will be capped depending on webinar capacity limitations.

Registration to attend virtual listening sessions. TTB will hold virtual listening sessions on February 28, 2024, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., Eastern Standard Time, and on February 29, 2024, from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., Eastern Standard Time. TTB reserves the right to reschedule or cancel the session for any reason, including a health emergency or severe weather that impacts the ability of TTB to conduct the session safely and effectively at the proposed date and time. Any changes or updates to the date or start and end time for the session will be posted on <https://www.ttb.gov/laws-regulations-and-public-guidance/listening-session>.

TTB will notify speakers of the order in which they are scheduled to speak and provide information on how to log in to the session as a speaker. An individual may speak during only one of the sessions (i.e., either on February 28, 2024, or on February 29, 2024, but not both). Confidentiality and Disclosure of Comments: All submitted comments and attachments are subject to public disclosure. Do not enclose any material in your comments that you consider confidential or that would be inappropriate for public disclosure.
